Homecoming (video game) Homecoming is a social, browser-based, first-person shooter video game developed by 17-year-old Marcus Persson from Sweden. This game has been released in February 2015. Gameplay Homecoming is a 3D shooter where you play as a member of the Homecoming Army. You do not have any choice in what weapon you start with, but you will be able to carry over several different different weapons throughout the game. You will experience a storyline in which you play as four different characters, the names of each of which are defined in the name of the chapter that they appear in. The four chapters include: Kelly (or 'Kel'), Bob, Max, and Bella. It also includes elements of role-playing games such as the ability to customize the appearance of your character, and the ability to change your outfit. Once you reach chapter 3, a bar appears that acts as the game's main hub, providing a notification system for new messages, as well as a power meter to indicate how much damage you have dealt to enemies. The bar can also be used to make your character heal. Development and release During 2013, Marcus Persson and his friends decided to create Homecoming. Their plan was to create a game with the multiplayer and flash-player. The team created the game, but at that time they needed to develop graphic. The team then released a web page for asking the public to donate. On February 7, 2014, Facebook games reached 100 million users. On that date Marcus Persson released the full game online. The game was initially developed with flash-player and it was playable in all the devices. The game has been
